Intelliswift is a premier IT services and solutions company, working with leading high-tech companies, high-growth internet companies, and financial services firms to provide professional and managed services, technology solutions implementation and maintenance, and offshore capabilities.

For the last ten years we have been in business, we have grown significantly by focusing on some core approaches to business:

- Every employee works towards only one goal: our client success. No matter how challenging the request, we instill the strong belief in all our employees that they are empowered to take decisions that will help a client succeed in their business goals. This has helped us gain immense trust with our clients, and has helped us expand our portfolio of services in a very short period of time.
- Our appetite for risk will reflect our clients' trust. Clients take a leap of faith in giving us business. If we cannot reciprocate this by developing a healthy appetite for sharing in our clients' business risks, the relationship would simply stagnate. By creating a risk-positive engagement model, we have taken on many customer requirements proactively to fulfillment, and have grown significantly from the model.
- We are centered on the client context. Clients' business changes dynamically, and their requirements in the context of these changes would have to reflect the way we tailor our services. We have instilled this culture of agility in the way we do business.
